Dear Hiring Manager:

I am interested in the position of Frontend Developer for your company as advertised in onlinejobs.ph. I am currently a volunteer worker assisting my mom in her job and a tutor to my siblings in their modular class. This pandemic, I choose to invest my time in enhancing my skills by attending online courses, coding sessions at least 2hrs/day, earned 4 certifications, created projects converting designs into responsive websites using HTML, CSS, SASS, Javascript and other frameworks/libraries which I believe, these skills are listed in your job requirements and with almost 350 contributions in GitHub. I believe that the skills and experience I have acquired makes me a suitable candidate for this job.

My passion for software development has led me to start the self-learning journey while working and teaching my siblings. With these, not only have I gained the primary skills, but also been able to organize my tasks, manage time wisely and developed productivity skills enabling myself to focus on work. Thanks to the deep work rules and principles by Cal Newport's Deep Work and James Clear's Atomic Habit. I admit I'm still on my learning journey but after all, I believe everything is a learning experience.

I have enclosed my resume and be happy to meet you soon to discuss the particulars of this position in more detail. My mobile number is +639-124-541-555 and my email address is liezl.mier1111@gmail.com.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Liezl S. Mier
